How Bharat put Mumbai on the Tourism Map of India

Article courtesy - Vinayak Talwar who is one of the passionate story tellers at Khaki Tours

This story begins in 2015 when a General Manager of Marketing in a Multi-National Conglomerate decides to make use of his spare time on a holiday. Meet Bharat Gothoskar, founder of KHAKI Tours who took his passion for the lesser-known secrets of his city out to the world and make it one of the most sought-after experiences for tourists visiting Mumbai.

Raised in the bustling metropolis of Bombay, Bharat grew up with a keen eye for looking at things for more than what they stood for. A city that today is known only as the Economic and Entertainment capital of India, Bharat has learnt to know this city beyond just the obvious and its cities within.

Bharat started KHAKI Tours with the intent of showing Mumbai to its own citizens beyond the colonial remnants noticeable in the Fort area by conducting heritage walks on holidays. His idea was to open windows in people's minds to the rich heritage that surrounds them. Today, people visit the likes of London, Rome, Paris, Venice, pay top dollar to attend heritage walks, only to come back to their own city and say "There is nothing interesting here". Starting with precincts that are not as 'touristy' as Fort, Bharat started conducting walks in areas such as Gamdevi, Bhuleshwar, Lalbaug, Banganga and today KHAKI conducts heritage walks in over 50 such precincts of the city with the numbers growing month after month.

With the popularity of KHAKI growing year on year, Bharat decided to grow his clout and start a program known as 'Ambassadors of Mumbai' where individuals passionate about history can learn about the multiple aspects of this city and train themselves to conduct walks on behalf of KHAKI as well. Today, KHAKI has become a household brand when it comes to heritage with experiences ranging from walks, talks, bus rides, jeep rides, curated food walks and what not. And not just for Mumbaiers, but even for first time visitors to this city, KHAKI has managed to create awareness for international and domestic travellers to experience Mumbai like never before.

What is the secret that makes KHAKI stand out compared to any other tour agency? It is not just the passion for heritage but the narrative that stands out. People are not here to listen to historical numbers and figures, but to listen to stories that nobody would have told them till now. How a historical fact becomes important for them is when it becomes relatable and that is what KHAKI has managed to achieve right to the T.

LEADER SPEAK

Walking the Talk Every Step of the Way

by Kush Kapoor CEO of Roseate Hotels & Resorts

Sustainability is intrinsically a part of who we are and what we do. It is deeply embedded in the Roseate philosophy. It begins with a mindset. A commitment.

We preserved the natural landscape across each of our hotels to the very best possible. The Roseate New Delhi a verdant green oasis in the capital city, conserves more than 1000 trees. Water, bodies, lush gardens, birds are a part of the fascinating ecosystem. It is a place to unwind, relax, disconnect to connect with yourself, far from the madding crowd.

The Rooms & Suites across our hotels are mindfully designed as calming sanctuaries that allow fresh air and sunlight to waft inside. The colour palette is pastel and calm, mostly earthy to induce balance with the larger ecosystem. Our aim was to reduce the surrounding noise and unnecessary clutter, creating an austere yet warm space for reflection and introspection.

Harmony with the environment has been at the helm of everything. At the Roseate Ganges, the focal point of each room is the view of the forest and connect with the landscape. The skylight in the bathrooms gives a feeling of being in the open and enjoy natural light throughout the day. Large balconies overlooking the verdant valley give a sense of unperturbed tranquillity and are a very prominent part of the experience. Usage of white marble and hardwood lend a sense of warmth which is juxtaposed with raw concrete plaster to take away the understated luxury. We've used natural materials such as hardwood, granite, marble and brass to lend warmth to the spaces. These materials have been used thoughtfully for long lasting use and give a sense of permanence.

Roseate Hotels & Resorts are non-smoking hotels. Most of our key departments are paperless. We do not use plastic in either room amenities or across our restaurants. In room amenities and toothbrushes are being recycled by those made with high quality bamboo. Carry bags used across our take away Cafés & Patisseries are made with certified recycled paper. We recycle waste water. Specially designed water tanks are used to save, store and reuse water. Kitchen waste is mindfully converted to compost which is used across our organic farms and hotel landscapes. We use biodegradable bags for waste disposal and all single use plastic has been discarded as well.

The resort has installed state of the art panels that collect moisture from the atmosphere, purify it and make it safe and healthy. This in-house brand of bottled water is further hygienically packaged in glassware, replacing plastic bottles. It is treated carefully before hotel converting into alkaline water with 8ph value in it and blended with trace minerals.
